

Arborist / Tree Service list

Identifying a Knowledgeable Arborist

The International Society of Arboriculture and the Tree Care Industry Association, formerly the National Arborists Association, are two great sources of information about what to look for in a tree care specialist. On the Web sites below, you can find contact information for arborists in your area who are members of or certified by these organizations.

- International Society of Arboriculture-- www.isa-arbor.com - 217-355-9411
- Tree Care Industry Association-- www.natlarb.com - 800-733-2622
- TreeService.Com – www.treeservice.com
- PaTrees.Org – www.patrees.org

In general, good arborists will;

- Be certified by the International Society of Arboriculture or by a local certifying body such as a state arborist association. Certification is voluntary, and is an indicator of professional practice, but not a guarantee;
- Have been in business for several years.
- Provide a list of references, upon request.
- Provide specific information about the problem and the proposed care for your trees.
- Provide you proof of their insurance and/or bonding.

Don't hesitate to ask what experience the arborist has in your area of concern.
